A WORTHY COMPLIMENT.

The Christian Index, the Organ of the C. M. E. Church, Pays a Tribute to the Enterprise of The Colored American.—Bishop Williams' Lithograph a Thing of Beauty.

In this issue of the Christian Index is a very high compliment paid Bishop Robert S. Williams, D. D., by The Colored American, published in Washington, D. C. It is one of the leading journals of the race and has a large circulation. The Colored American brought out a beautiful lithograph of Bishop Williams with the editorial referred to, and was distributed freely to its subscribers in Washington. So great is Bishop Williams' popularity in the capitol of the nation, that when his name appeared in the paper, there was a greater demand for it than ever.

The supply was soon exhausted and the editor offered a liberal price for all unsold copies held by the agents. Then says The Colored American "The demand for the last edition of The Colored American was so great that the entire edition was exhausted. Agents who have any unsold copies on hand, will please return them at our expense."

The popularity of Bishop R. S. Williams was shown by the great demand for the paper not only in Washington. His lithograph was admired by all, and the publisher has been forced to get out a second edition. Now is the time to subscribe.

Admirers of Bishop Williams, and they are legion, take off their hats to Editor Cooper for the magnificent tribute of last week. The colored photograph issued as a supplement represents the highest development of pictorial art, and a handsome man has received worthily a handsome compliment.

The very high compliment paid Bishop Williams is a deserved one, and certainly gives a delineation of a unique character. He possesses admirable qualities, sociable, affable, kind-hearted, outspoken and straightforward.

Whatever position he may take, his enemies, if there be any, as well as his friends, concede that he is honest in his conviction. He is always found on the side of right. There is no quibbling nor button-holing about him, and neither does he mince his words, but takes a stand for the right and is always frank enough to tell a man just what he thinks of him. He has excellent qualities and knows how to handle men. He is one of those who do not believe that the high office of Bishop lifts him above his brethren; but he appears as a brother and father, jovial and benign. He hates flattery and despises vanity and when he comes among his conferences or in any gathering men rever and honor him.

It often happens that some, when elevated to the bench make great demands on the brethren, and want extraordinary preferment and distinction. There are the fewest of men that we have ever seen on the bench in any Methodist Church like him.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church has truly honored itself by electing him Bishop, and as he grows in years, his great influence and popularity will continue to increase.—The Christian Index.

GOOD WORDS AGAIN.

"Success to The Colored American," in her new dress, this shows what our race can do. When every village and town has its paper and distributes to the public, then they will see the necessity of capital N to the word Negro.

When those who find fault and criticize the peerless, progressive educator, Journal, Colored American and Pioneer Press, and other publishers, let them do what they have to make the world better, it might then be place for these to criticize, provided they had the sense and the ability to do more than they have to make the country better.—The People's Journal, Berryville, Va.
